
[o] BERGHAIN
panoramabar
SAULE

This Schneider
Hypersalt

Picos ensaiados yourself
Hypersalt is explicitly tied to space, Berlin and TPR and DJ TEETH, and we met Hypersalt together in Berlin with our partner Jon. We are a party that loves music and we think Hypersalt is one of the most exciting producers and DJs in Berlin. We love how he mixes his own designers, occasionals and record collection. Said music recently released label, Temporale Recordings.

When looking at the trajectory of Hypersalt, there is a distinct collection of influences that come together in a unique and fluid fashion. What is the core collaborative process behind your sound, and how do you decide which influences to bring forward in a specific track?
In the beginning we just wanted to create a queer party with a specific aesthetic and a specific sound. We started with Jonas Tröger, who was Jona Fitzi, we both a little up around the local techno scene and we both felt that there was a lack of a queer party. We felt that the techno scene was connecting contemporary dance music to its wider lineage, starting with early electronic music and the Berlin Techno scene, but not dealing with early other 80s creating subculture where we come from, and at the same time, Berlin's techno culture is very, very, very,